FISH CONSERVATION NOW APPROVED OF

Wallace Ingalls of Racine Says That Rock River Carp Are Excellent Eating Having Sampled Them.

Among the latest converts to the German carp as a palatable species of edible fish, is Assemblyman Wallace Ingalls of Racine. Mr. Ingalls, who is on his way home from Burlington where he delivered the Memorial Day address before the G. A. R., stopped over in Janesville part of the day to thank Grant U. Fisher for a delicious carp he sent him last week, the eating of which has converted Mr. Ingalls to carp as a food diet.

"It was a most delicious morsel of fish," said Mr. Ingalls today in thanking his friend Fisher. "It was received last Friday evening and we had it cooked the next day. I expected bass but found that in some respects it even exceeded this gamey fish in flavor and we all enjoyed it very much. I most heartily endorse Governor Davidson's opinion that carp are this eating."

The carp in question was one that was taken from the pond in Roub's park last Friday when thirty thousand pilch were placed there to grow large enough to be allowed in the river between the two dams. The work of setting was done under the direction of Game Warden Drake, at the request of Mr. Fisher, who secured the fish for the Rock river. Several hundred pounds of carp were secured in the nets, and one of the largest was dressed, packed in ice and shipped to Mr. Ingalls at Racine.

It was really meant for a joke on the republican aspirant for congress but as it turns out it has made nothing but convert for the much despised carp that infest the Wisconsin lakes and rivers. Mr. Ingalls had been expecting a fish from his friend the game warden and so was entirely innocent of any joke and had it prepared for the table, where invited guests helped enjoy it and commented on its delicious flavor.

"Since learning it was a carp," said Mr. Ingalls, "I have taken pains to make a study of the fish. I find that there are few of the real genuine carp left in the lakes and rivers but that they are crosses between the Buffalo fish and the carp originally placed there several years ago. When properly cooked I should think that the present day so-called carp would be a most acceptable food diet. It has a peculiar flavor but is really excellent and I should favor an abolishment of the present wholesale selling of them for eastern markets and a conservation for the home consumption."

Mr. Ingalls also added that he had recently returned from Germany and England where he had been making an examination of the industrial insurance conditions and that he found that in Germany the carp was freely eaten and was found on the markets. "There is no reason why it should not be a good fish to eat," said Mr. Ingalls, "and I am delighted to have had an opportunity of testing its flavor."

In this Mr. Ingalls agrees with Governor Davidson who last week endorsed the carp as a food product and believed that the wholesale selling of them in the rivers and lakes should be stopped. Many local fishermen have made good hauls of carp recently and say that they find a sale for the fish in the city showing that the food value of the fish is becoming recognized.

WHERE DID HE GET LADY'S NIGHTROBE?

Charles Ekstein Was Wearing One In Lieu of Underclothing When Arrested by Officer Brown.

Laboring under the curious conviction that he had been delegated to take command of the merry-go-round at the intersection of West Milwaukee and Academy streets, a stranger named Charles Ekstein insisted upon inspecting the mechanism during every intermission yesterday morning and, between times, on expressing the highest sentiments towards the Kake and Fatherland. When he had annoyed the management and their patrons for some time a complaint was filed with the police department. Officer Sam Brown had considerable difficulty in getting the man started for the city hall without resorting to violence, as he stubbornly refused to budge an inch until the handcuffs began to cut into his wrists. When examined at the station it was discovered that in lieu of underwear Mr. Ekstein was wearing a robe do mit of feminine pattern. He appeared perfectly rational this morning but would furnish no information regarding his peculiar wearing apparel. He said that he had come from Chicago and was hoping to obtain a position as waiter in a Milwaukee beer-garden. Chief Appleby gave him about fifteen minutes to get out of town.

OBITUARY

Funeral services for John Albert Johnson were held at three o'clock Sunday afternoon from the Norwegian Lutheran church, Rev. W. A. Johnson officiating. A large family circle and many friends attended the services. The casket was covered with handsome floral tributes. Ray Gustland, Allen Burlesome, Melvin Anderson, Fred Hosenauer, Charles Hosenauer and John Nielsen were the pallbearers. The remains were held at rest in Oak Hill cemetery.

Mrs. James Fessenden, of the town of Porter, died on May 26th at Elroy, Wisconsin, aged eighty-four. The remains were brought to Elford for interment on Saturday last. Mrs. Fessenden was one of the pioneer residents of the county and was on a visit at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Cor Corfield, at Elroy, at the time of her death. She leaves to mourn her loss four daughters, Mrs. Clifford Elroy, Mrs. George Gonth, of Johnston; Mrs. Inez Yaden, of Glenville and two sons, Horace of Alton and Herman of Glenwood.

If all thought alike, there would be no horse, trading, or advertising.

FOOTVILLE PLAYERS BEAT A BELOIT NINE

"White Sox" Team Defeated Line City Y. M. C. A. Squad Yesterday.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Footville, May 31.—In spite of the cold northwest wind, which made the sport anything but enjoyable, three hundred and fifty fans witnessed the ball game at Owen's park Monday afternoon between the Footville "White Sox" and the Beloit Y. M. C. A. nine, in which the latter were defeated by the score of 5 to 3. The first part of the contest was very close, but in the seventh inning, the foot went "up in the air" and were unable to "make good" the rest of the game. Good sized delegations of fans were present from Orlinville, Broadhead, Evansville and Albany. The detailed score of the game:

Really Poor Penman.
There is a certain Philadelphia physician of considerable prominence who is renowned among his friends as the worst penman in the Quaker city. He used to write them letters and then feel hurt when they could not read them. When he wrote to persons who were not familiar with his scrawl they frequently would not know whom the letters were from. Some time ago he introduced a typewriter into his office, and this rendered the body of the letter intelligible, but did not clear up the difficulty over the signature. Now, however, says the Record, he has had made a rubber stamp bearing his name and address in printing. He signs his name in the usual scrawl, but alongside he impresses his stamp. It is a little humiliating, he says, but he no longer has any trouble about persons to whom he writes not knowing from whom the letters are.

Men's Mistakes.
About the only variety in some men's lives lies in the mistakes they make.

TO RUN FOR CONGRESS IN ORDER TO SECURE REOPENING OF NAVAL SCANDAL.

Mrs. J. N. Sutton, mother of the late Lieutenant Sutton, whose mysterious death at Annapolis threatened to become a "Dreyfus" case in America.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Miss Daisy May Sutton, sister of Lieut. James N. Sutton, whose death at Annapolis two years ago threatened to develop into a "Dreyfus" case in America, today at the Angeles hotel affirmed the statement that her mother, Mrs. J. N. Sutton, would run for congress as a means of influencing legislation toward reopening the investigation into the cause of her son's death.

In a few weeks, Miss Sutton said, her mother will be in Los Angeles on her way to Portland, Ore., where she intends to open her campaign. S. C. Cross, according to Miss Sutton, will take the stump in behalf of Mrs. Sutton and make speeches, not only in Oregon, but in every state on the Pacific coast.

"My mother is more than ever convinced," said Miss Sutton, "that Jim met his death at the hands of his enemies, and she will not rest, until his name is cleared."

UNITED STATES WILL INTERVENE

REMOVAL OF CUSTOM HOUSE AT BLUEFIELDS WILL CAUSE ACTION.

200 MARINES ARE RUSHED

Attack of Gen. Lara is Repulsed With Heavy Loss, Thanks to American Gunners—Batista Captures Many Prisoners.

Washington, May 31.—The navy department learned with much gratification that the commander of the cruiser Dubuque had promptly taken on board the 200 marines who have been in camp at Empire and sailed from Cristobal for Bluefields.

The marines will be landed on the Dubuque's arrival and the reinforcement to the little American army now in the field will give the situation entirely into the hands of the navy and state departments. The complete force will number 350 marines and blue jackets, a number believed to be sufficient to keep in check 2,500 Madriz soldiers, considering the difference in armament.

Brings United States Into Dispute.

While the state department maintains complete silence on the developments around Bluefields, it is acknowledged in diplomatic circles that the action of Batista in removing the custom house from Bluefields bluffs and the announcement of the Madriz garrison there that the government will continue to demand payment of duties to it, has placed the government in an embarrassing position.

On the first occasion in which an American vessel is held up for duties the question will be put squarely up to the department as to which of the combatants is the responsible government of Nicaragua and entitled to collect customs, and it is believed will make intervention inevitable.

Battle Losses Are Heavy.

Bluefields, Nicaragua, May 31.—General Lara, commander of the Madriz forces, began an attack on General Batista's positions about three o'clock in the morning. He advanced against Batista's left flank with 500 men, but after hard fighting, in which many were killed and wounded, the Madriz troops were forced to retire. Batista's losses were light. Machine guns manned by Americans contributed in an important degree to Batista's victory.

About the same time an attack was begun on the extreme south flank, but this, too, failed, there being heavy losses of Lara's men. Batista succeeded in capturing a large number of prisoners, who report that General Lara is convinced it would be impossible to take the intrenchments of the provisionals.

Port Is Changed.

The port of Bluefields has been officially changed by the provisional government from the bluff to a point three miles up the Escondido river, and the custom house has been officially removed to the city of Bluefields.

ROBERT HUNTER IS NOMINATED.

Becomes Socialist Candidate for Governor of Connecticut.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 31.—At the convention of the Socialist party of Connecticut held here, Robert Hunter of Noroton, the author and settlement worker in New York, was nominated for governor. For secretary of state the Socialists nominated Ella Revo of Waterbury, who ran a few votes ahead of Henry J. Horsfield of Bridgeport. There was considerable opposition because of her sex, and a question was raised as to the legality of the action. She is well-known as a worker in the national body.

Jersey City, N. J., May 31.—Wilson H. Killingbeck of Orange was nominated for governor of New Jersey by the Socialist party in convention here.

EXPECTS TO BE NEXT SPEAKER.

Champ Clark Says He Will Have Good Show for Position.

Washington, May 31.—"I would rather be speaker for two years than United States senator for 18 years," said Representative Champ Clark of Missouri, Democratic leader of the house. "Of course, there is nothing certain except death and taxes, but the Democrats will control the next house as surely as you are living, and I believe I have a good show for the speakership."

In this way Mr. Clark disposed of the report that he would be a candidate for the senate to succeed Senator Warner, Republican.

Three Coffee Reasons.

Coffee dangers, coffee economy, and coffee satisfaction are three very important subjects. And all three of these points are completely treated in the new creation known to good housewives as Dr. Shoop's "Health Coffee."

Health Coffee actually costs three times as fast as common coffee—100 cups from a 25 cent, 15 pound package. And remember, there is not a grain of real coffee in it! Being made from pure roasted corn, malt, nuts, etc., it offers a wholesome, healthful, and delicious drink, that will actually strengthen, and fortify, and invigorate either child or adult. And its taste and flavor is exquisite. Besides no tedious 20 to 30 minutes boiling is at all necessary. "Made in a minute," says Dr. Shoop.

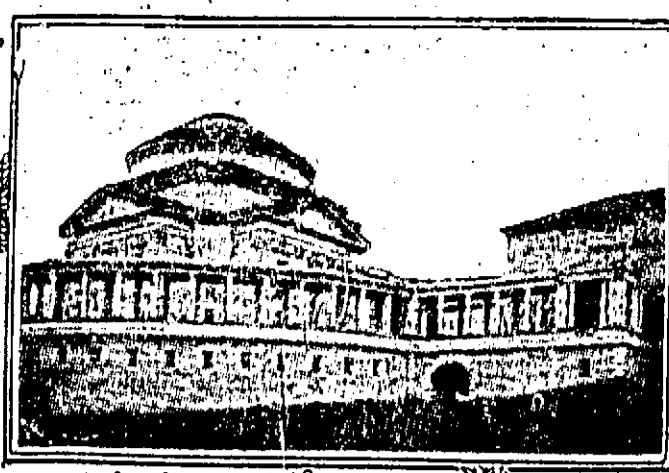

Do not injure your self or your children by the use of common coffee or tea. Simply try Health Coffee once, and be convinced. Write Dr. Shoop, Madison, Wis., for his free booklet, "Coffee Dangers."

WORLD INTEREST CENTERS IN THE NEXT ELECTION FOR THE HALL OF FAME.

Andrew Carnegie, who has been elected to the board of directors, At Right, Hall of Fame. Below, Edgar Allan Poe and Frances Willard.

New York, May.—World interest centers in the coming election to the American hall of fame. The only important change in the board of directors is the succession of Andrew Carnegie in place of the late Grover Cleveland. Three tickets are to be inserted to the ones selected from over two hundred names. The first will be the most famous American man of native birth, the second, the most famous American man of foreign birth, and third, the most famous American woman. Today sentiment seems to run generally in the direction of Edgar Allan Poe as the leading American man of native birth.

Others who have been suggested and are considered as likely selections are William Cullen Bryant, Patrick Henry, Horace Greeley, Phillips Brooks. Among those of foreign birth being considered are John Ericsson, Albert Gallatin, Roger Williams and Jacques Marquette. Among the most famous women mentioned are Frances Willard, Helen Hunt Jackson, Louisa M. Alcott, Mary the Washington.

Labor Conditions in Steel Mills to be Investigated by the United States Government.

Washington, D. C.—Labor Commissioner Charles P. Neill is to investigate the condition of employees in the steel mills of Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and other parts of the United States. The investigation was ordered by the bill introduced into the United States senate at the instance of Senator Borah of Idaho. It came as the direct result of the report of Dr. Neill on the situation at the Bethlehem Steel works in Pennsylvania.

H. H. Gary took occasion to defend the employers, stating that the conditions in American steel mills were infinitely superior to those abroad.

Wine Production Increasing.
Wine production in Chile is increasing. The acreage in vineyards is 145,894, of which 47,103 acres are irrigated. There is great demand for American oak staves.

HIGH PRICED BUTTER.

The statement has been made the packers would put the price of June butter up to 40 cents per pound, and the question is frequently asked, "What have the packers to do with the price of butter?"

An Eastern exchange claims to have solved the mystery, and thus answers the question: "The great meat packers in these times must have great cold-storage warehouses for their surplus products. The space and the facilities of these great storage warehouses are at times very much more than sufficient to care for the meat surplus proper. But whether the storage space is used or not the plants must be maintained. Hence during recent years the packers of meat have also become dealers in and packers of butter and eggs and poultry and vegetables and fruits. In a way, they have been forced into handling these side lines. Recently they contracted for the entire butter output of the Omaha district, amounting to about 8,000,000 pounds, at the 'Elgin' market price. That is to say, they would pay for all deliveries at the rate made by the Elgin butter market, which is the greatest butter market in the world.

"But the Elgin butter men also wanted the Omaha output, and, regardless of this special case, are strongly opposed to the meat packers invading what they regard as their particular commercial province, and here appeared to be an opportunity of administering severe chastisement to the intruders. Said they, 'unmindful altogether of the interests of the consumer, 'We shall make the stockyards magnates pay high for that Omaha butter.' And so they began to boost the Elgin market.

"The first move, so the dispatches tell us, will be to put Elgin butter up to 40 cents a pound. The packers' contract is for June and July delivery, so that there is plenty of time to advance the price gradually from day to day and from week to week, until, if the plan of the Elgin men do not fall through, the packers will be paying $1 a pound for the Omaha supply.

"The consumer is not considered very often or very seriously in matters of this kind, and yet the consumer here as elsewhere holds the key to the situation. It is for him to say whether he will meet the cost of the struggle between the packers and the Elgin butter dealers. If he shall refuse to foot the bill, if he shall decline to pay 'war prices' for butter when peace prices should prevail, the Elgin market quotations will get back to normal, and remain there. He might even make it possible to compel the packers to show why good public policy would not be better subserved by their abandonment of a system which has a decided tendency toward the monopolization of an article of food."

If the conditions stated are true, and Elgin continues to make prices, there is nothing to prevent butter going out of sight, unless the government investigation, now in progress, succeeds in calling a halt.

What the country needs, as a balance-wheel to high priced butter, is free oleomargarine, a food product just as wholesome as butter. The government tax should be removed, and then butter could be kept within reasonable bounds.

LACK OF APPRECIATION.

That President Taft is keenly alive to the wholesale criticism heaped upon him by muckrakers and disloyal republicans, is evidenced by the following statement:

"Here is a visitor who urges a campaign of publicity; he tells the President that all the country needs to bring it to his side again is a knowledge of his views and his purposes. President Taft says in substance: 'What's the use? I have resigned myself to misunderstanding.'

"I don't say that I'm indifferent to public opinion, but I have ceased to count on it or hope for it. I must wait for time and the results of my labors to vindicate me. They will do so. I have a profound and abiding faith in the people. Their final judgment will be right. But it will not be given till the results are clear—as they will be.

"I don't want any forced or any manufactured sentiment in my favor. Besides, I don't believe that anything I could do or say would contribute in the least to enlighten the public or to change its view. I simply can't do that sort of thing, anyhow. 'That isn't my method. But I'll tell you what I can do and am going to do. I have three more years in which to give the country the very best service I know how to give it. In my own way. There isn't going to be much said just now, but there are going to be things done, before the country gets through with me, that ought to insure a final judgment that I won't be ashamed of.'

That he is also confident that time will vindicate him during the remaining three years of his administration, is made clear by his statement, and it will, for the American people, in the last analysis, are fair, and when they recover from the spasm of frenzy and insurgency which has attacked them they will discover that Taft has lost nothing in statesmanship.

When elected to the high office of chief executive he was regarded as the best man in the nation to succeed President Roosevelt, and this estimate of public opinion has not changed, so far as the rank and file are concerned.

Some of the men selected to uphold his hands have proved recalcitrant to the trust, and a streak of yellow journalism has marred the landscape. There may be changes in the House and Senate affecting the complexion of congress, but there will be no change in the White House before 1912, and long before that time President Taft will be appreciated, and his ability and honesty of purpose recognized.

There is rejoicing all along the line, among the republicans of the state, over the fact that the party is to be re-organized, not in any factional way, but on the broad platform of loyalty. The invitation sent out is to every man who endorses the republican president and his administration, neither "stalwart" nor "half-breed," just plain every day republicans, who place party loyalty above strife, and who honor and endorse the man elected to preside over the destinies of the nation.

A financial journal publishes the names of forty American women, whose combined wealth is $500,000,000. Mrs. Russell Sage heads the list with sixty million. This money represents inherited wealth and the most of it is invested in railroad and industrial stocks.

The senate, and not Lorrimer, is on trial in the court of public opinion. Next to the supreme court of the nation the United States senate should be above suspicion, and no time should be lost by that high tribunal in freeing itself from the taint which has blighted it.

The wheat acreage this year amounts to 50,000,000 acres, which placed at the low average of 15 bushels to the acre, will yield 750,000,000 bushels. If prosperity continues the home market will consume the most of this product, leaving but a small margin for export.

PRESS COMMENT.

Encourage Procrastination?

Would the "next" legislature do so sensible a thing as to pass a law requiring every registered deed and instrument of transfer to express the exact consideration? It could not possibly harm any one and would be a decided public gain.—Itasca Journal.

One Good Point.

Speaker Cannon says he has lived within his income ever since he was a boy. Young men will do well to follow "Uncle Joe" in this respect, at least.—Milwaukee Free Press.

No Chance to Roam.

Pro-Taft men of the state are called to meet June 8 in Milwaukee; Democrats are to gather there June 2, and now the insurgents are to answer the whistle of Sen. La Follette about June 15—but not in Milwaukee, Nob will duck them all into Madison where they are much easier methered.—Heliot Free Press.

And Still—

La Follette has already offended, but it is not at all sure that Taft will take that predicted trip through Wisconsin.—Janesville Gazette.

But if he should, you would applaud him for doing the very thing that you condemned La Follette for doing. So you adopt the rule and paint the moral.—Milwaukee Journal.

Which is taking for granted that he would adopt La Follette's campaign methods. That course is manifestly impossible for a man of the president's upright and fair-minded temperament.

Get busy, get busy, then, get busy! The man who loiters in the shade to watch the busy man's parade will find his hopes of fortune faded, get busy, then, get busy! If you in feeble style depend upon assistance from a friend you're sure to fall before the end—get busy, then, get busy! Make up your mind that you will pack your burden on your own broad back, and, brave and buoyant, hit the track—get busy, then, get busy! Just feel that you're of equal worth with any doggone man on earth, regardless of his age on birth; get busy, then, get busy! WHAT ABOUT THAT VACATION?

"If you don't know where to go, how to go, or what it will cost you, better ask Recreation's Information Bureau—no charge is made to readers of Recreation for the service. We are in receipt of the June number of Recreation, the big, bright, vacation number issued yearly. It is so full of good things that reading it gives one the feeling of having enjoyed a vacation and if you really are to have a vacation you cannot afford to miss the June number. The publishers are particularly anxious to have more of our citizens know Recreation and offer to send a copy free to any reader of this paper who is genuinely interested in clean, wholesome recreation. A postal card with your name and address and the name of this paper, if addressed to Recreation, 24 W. 30th St., New York, will secure you this copy. We know how good Recreation is and we would be glad to have our citizens who like, hunt, canoe or go on vacations take advantage of this liberal offer.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

RELAXATION.

You get tired, of course. But you wait until your bedtime to take your rest. You "never have time" during the day.

Strange, to say the least. People say, "Oh, I can't sleep in the daytime." And because they can't sleep they will not rest. No matter how worn they may be, they will not lie down or relax. Patiently they wait until the sun goes down and then after a time crawl into their beds.

The animals know better. Watch your dog. The very moment he has a chance he throws himself prone upon the ground. Even his head goes down on his paws, and his exuberant tail is limp. He relaxes every muscle. And he snatches every chance he can get to do this.

But you—why, you will wear yourself out, body and soul, go all the day long without a single effort to relax and sometimes wonder if you will be able to hold out until Sunday.

I am talking now to people in middle age and past.

Learn to relax. During the work and the worry of the day your muscles and nerves get taut and tuned up like violin strings. A violin string that is always kept keyed to its highest tension soon loses its fiber and resonance. And if the tuning up process continues the string snaps.

Let down the taut strings! How do you do when you travel, for instance? Do you sit upright, straight as a bean pole, every nerve and muscle high strung, every brain cell alert? Certainly not. Like the other passengers, you let go and lo! and rest.

Suppose you should do this every day—or oftener?

You would discover soon that invigoration and strength would come to you and you would not be nearly so tired when night comes.

I know a man up in the eighties who is in the active practice of the law. I interviewed him as to his longevity and vigor. He said:

"I have but one reason. Every day for fifty years I have taken a brief nap in the middle of the day—not a long sleep, mind you. I simply lose consciousness. By long practice I am able to do this in four or five minutes. A minute's sleep is as good as an hour's—sometimes better. When I wake up it is like waking up in a new world. I thus cut the day into two parts—dodging half of it."

Relax! That is the last word of modern science. It is the word of practical experience. It is the word of common sense.

Relax!

Sure to Help. No stream from its source flows seaward, however lonely its course, but that some hand is guiding it. No life can be pure in its purpose and strong in its strife, and all life not be purer and stronger thereby.—Merodith.

The Game of War and the Game of Chess

By SADIE MARSH

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

A contempt for death is the main cause of the triumph of the diminutive Japanese over the largest (territorially and numerically) nation of Europe.

One of the Japanese leaders of the insurrection against the emperor of Japan in 1873 was Count Saigo. The revolt was a failure, and toward the close, the count was shut up in his fortress, the enemy slowly but surely surrounding it and cutting off every avenue of escape. At last it was evident to the count that the capture of his castle was but a question of time, and he knew that when that time came his head would be stricken from his body. Then the leader retired to the living rooms with a party of his most intimate associates and, calling for his chessboard, sat down for a game.

He had played but a few minutes when a messenger from one of his lieutenants came hurrying in with the news that the enemy had captured an important outpost. The count simply bowed his head to indicate that he had heard the message and understood the situation; then he went on with the game.

There were a number of lookers-on criticizing the play, rallying the players when a bad move was made, chaffing one another, laughing, gossiping, evidently unmindful that an enemy was closing in upon them, and when the castle was captured many of them all of them would be put to the sword. As if the game stood for that more important battle going on outside, Count Saigo's king was gradually being driven into a corner.

"Check!" said his adversary. The count took one of his adversary's unimportant pieces, thus delaying temporarily the final catastrophe.

Another messenger came in and said: "The enemy have captured the round tower of the west angle. This puts him in possession of the angle, and he is now scaling the inner wall with ladders."

Again the count nodded his head politely to indicate that he had heard and that the messenger might consider himself dismissed. Then, dropping his eyes again upon the chessboard, he said quietly:

"Your move."

His adversary replied by taking one of Count Saigo's castles.

So the game went on. In different parts of the room groups were amusing themselves, chatting, telling stories, laughing. No one entering the apartment without a knowledge of the enemy's presence without would have dreamed that these men were being gradually closed in upon and that within a short time the heads of most of them would be rolling on the ground.

"The enemy have scaled the outer walls on the east and are pouring down into the moat. They will soon be on the inner wall, from which they may drop into the court."

This was the report of the third messenger. The count gave him the same imperturbable dismissal, this time with his hand on his knight while studying whether to make a move with it.

"A check!" he said as he took up his piece and put it down in another square.

"The enemy are dropping into the court at the west angle," said another messenger, "but our men are making a good fight there."

"The count's opponent moved out of check, leaving his adversary in a worse position than before. From this point the count's king was being gradually surrounded, and an expert at chess could see a sure defeat in a given number of moves. The game interested the players and the lookers-on, but, judging from appearances, that dreadful game outside was of no importance to them. And yet they knew that in a given number of successive moves sure to come they would be at the mercy of their enemies, and for rebels there was no mercy."

"The enemy are climbing the walls in every direction!" cried the last messenger who was destined to carry news of the successes of the emperor's troops.

A checkmate for Count Saigo was sure to occur within two moves. They were made and the game was finished. Rising, the count said:

"Gentlemen, now it is time."

Those about waited in deference to their leader, who said to one standing beside him:

"My sword bearer."

There was a pause in the conversation. The jests, the laughter, every sound within the room, ceased. Without the yells of the enemy, breaking through opposing obstacles, were loud and fierce. Not a man inside moved; not a countenance displayed any agitation. All waited respectfully for their leader to take such action as he deemed proper.

Then the sword bearer appeared, and all understood what the count's action would be. In a low tone he instructed the sword bearer to do the work which, unless done by his own order, would surely be done by that of the leaders of the victorious troops. The count knelt, clasping his hands behind his back. Every one understood what was about to be done, but there was no protest, no suggestion that such a course might be avoidable.

Then the sword bearer swung his weapon in the air, it descended, and Count Saigo's head rolled on the floor.

HE TRIED TELLING THE TRUTH

Inspiration That Extricated Government Clerk from an Exceedingly Deep Hole.

Government clerks in Washington are allowed so much time every year for vacation and so much for sick leave. The improved health of the capital city has eliminated the sick leave requirements, and of recent years clerks have been somewhat worried as to how they should continue to secure it in view of their robust health. A conversation overheard in one of the corridors throws light on the situation.

"You bet I was up against it last August."

"Thought you had a fine vacation—what was the matter?"

"Vacation was all right—it was before I started. You see, I secured medical certificates from two different doctors—the first was an insurance doctor who gave me a clean bill of health to obtain a policy. The other doctor was a friend of mine, and he gave me a certificate that would help out on my vacation for extended sick leave."

"Well, what of it? Lots of us do that. Does your conscience prick you now?"

"Well, I shuffled the two certificates and sent the insurance doctor's assurance of good health to my chief, with a note asking for extended leave; the paper making me out desperately ill. I sent to the insurance company."

"What on earth did you—I see you have not lost your position?"

"Well, I lay awake all one night worrying. In the morning I had an inspiration—I told the chief the truth."

Fierce Democracy.

This town has the strongest, fiercest spirit of democracy ever seen in the world before, and anyone who does not sniff it in the air couldn't smell a glass factory, high-class and highly paid waiters will stand for being called "Gus" and "Bill," but when one tries this fresh and too familiar style of patronage on a cheap restaurant waiter something is liable to occur which shows that "Gus" or "Bill" doesn't want condescension smeared upon him, for often enough this particular "Gus" of "Bill" speaks three or four languages clearly and politely, and, in another year, when he comes to his true place, may be sailing away his fifty or sixty dollars a week.—New York Press.

CHOICE OF HAIRPINS.

How to Select the Right Kind and Show Good Taste.

Do not get into the habit of thinking that a suitable hairpin is anything that will hold up the hair. If this notion were not so widespread there would not be so many freakish looking heads and cut and split hair.

Hairpins may be wrong in several ways. They may be too ornate, which is poor taste, or too rough and cheap, which is ruinous to the hair.

Some women will wear nothing but tortoise shell pins in their hair. This is undoubtedly a luxury, as most hair is given to shedding pins at wholesale rates. There is nothing, however, that is so little injurious to the hair from the absolute smoothness of the surface.

When you cannot afford real shell the next choice is a good celluloid pin. This is smoother and less unsightly than rubber and not so ugly nor so injurious as metal pins. The latter should not be worn by women whose hair is very fine or whose scalps perspire.

Where a pin shows, as is the case with the present style of braids, if possible buy real shells, though your smaller pins are imitation. If carefully handled, kept from extreme heat and cold and securely inserted these pins should last for years.

Do not overcrowd your head with pins. Most women wear more than is necessary. Learn to adjust a pin properly, and the number may be sensibly decreased. Overplanning breaks the hair and may irritate sensitive scalps.

Good taste in hair pins is shown by wearing those that are inconspicuous, both in size and texture. Some women affect huge knots on the ends of their pins, or they are studded with jewels or ablaze with gold.

Advertising in an insurance policy against forgetfulness. It compels people to think of you.

Cats Watching Sparrows.

Every afternoon just before twilight a row of cats of all ages, staves, gauges, breeds, tribes and then a few other kinds thrown in to sort of even up the balance of things, can be seen in the yard next to St. Andrew's church, at Eighth and Shipley streets. All of them are squeezed as close to the wall of the church building as they can get, and there they lie in wait for sparrows which infest the creeping vines that grow all over the wall of the church on the south side.

Every moment or so some luckless sparrow alights too near the ground or chirps too loud, and some cat immediately makes a running jump up the vine, and before the bird can fly from under the leaves it is cat food. Sometimes as many as 25 can be seen in a row watching for their evening meal of birds.—Washington News.

MEMORIAL SERVICES ARE WELL ATTENDED

Myers Theatre Well Filled Monday Afternoon By Veterans and Their Friends.

Memorial Day in Janesville was well observed by the veterans of the great struggle and their friends on Monday. Aside from the visit to the cemetery in the morning the exercises in the Myers theatre in the afternoon were a pretty tribute to the memory of the departed soldiers and sailors who have gone to the world beyond and to the living veterans to whom this day means so much. The big auditorium of the theatre was filled way to the doors and many stood during the program. It was just two when the veterans marched from their hall to the theatre. Led by the fifes and drum corps whose inspiring music recalled other days to the old soldiers, with an escort of the United Spanish War veterans in the lead with a flag, the march of the block was quickly made. The younger Spanish war veterans lined up on each side of the walk and permitted their older companions to enter the building first. Here seats had been reserved for them and the exercises of the afternoon began. Reverend T. D. Williams offering prayer followed by J. F. Carle, the presiding officer of the afternoon, opening address. J. O. Kimberly then sang a beautiful day selection and Miss Anna Cutler gave a recitation. Lincoln's Gettysburg address was given by Col. E. O. Kimberly, music by the Y. M. C. A. quartette, a solo by Mrs. Gertrude Winbiger, selections of inspiring nature by the fife and drum corps and the address of Attorney William H. Dougherty completed the afternoon's program. Mr. Dougherty gave a typical Memorial Day address that was strong and virile. He brought home to his hearers the greatness of the deeds accomplished by the Grand Army of the Republic, the dead, the living. He deplored the fact that within a few years this grand army of heroes would have departed this life and touched upon the lesson they taught to the rising generation. The day was a real letter one for the old soldiers and the action of the automobile owners in conveying them to and from the cemetery was a most touching tribute to them.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS AND AUXILIARY SOCIAL

Seventy-five members of Harry L. Gifford Camp and Families Enjoyed Supper Last Evening.

Seventy-five members of Harry L. Gifford Camp, United Spanish American War Veterans and the ladies belonging to the Auxiliary gave a supper and entertainment at the hall last evening. The report was served at half past six o'clock and the tables were attractively decorated with small pink flags. Several hours were devoted to a social good time. Arrangements were in charge of Carl Hinchholz, John Kellerman, and Henry Friesse of the camp, and Mrs. Bert Hill, Mrs. Charles Hanson, and Mrs. Jesse Dixon of the Auxiliary.

JANESVILLE RED SOX DEFEATED YESTERDAY

Beloit Nationals Victorious in Baseball Game at Yost's Park by the Score of 5 to 3.

The Janesville Red Sox were defeated 5 to 3 at Yost's Park by the Beloit Nationals yesterday afternoon. Carroll and Harris were the batterers for the Red Sox and Moon and Moses for the Nationals. Brown were largely responsible for the defeat of the Red Sox, six being made. Carroll struck out eleven Beloit batters and seven Red Sox were fanned by Moon.

MISS ADA ATTLESEY AND W. COLLINS WERE MARRIED LAST NIGHT

Ceremony Was Performed by Archdeacon Henry William in Trinity Church.

Last evening at Trinity church, Miss Ada Attlessey of Fulton and William Collins of this city were united in marriage by Archdeacon Henry William. The bride was attended by Miss May Collins while Bennett McMorris acted as best man. Mr. and Mrs. Collins will make their home in this city.

JOHNSON-KETCHEL MATCH.

Admiration of the many sport, without respect to sex, will have a great opportunity Wednesday and Thursday to see a remarkable display of science in the squared circle at the Nickelodeon, when Sherwood and Williams will present the Johnson-Ketchel match in moving pictures. The Johnson-Ketchel match in moving picture form, consisting of three thousand feet of film, is one of the thirty-two in this country controlled by Johnson himself. These pictures will not be displayed after July 4, the date of the Jeffries-Johnson bout, and will be the last opportunity the people will have to see Jack Johnson in action before the big go July 4th.

WILNA SOVERHILL WON GOLD MEDAL

In Annual Contest of Students of American Conservatory of Music at Chicago.

Miss Wilna Soverrhill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Soverrhill of this city, won second honors in the recent annual contest of the students of the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago. The prize is a gold medal which will be presented to her during the course of the commencement exercises at Orchestra hall on June 16, at which time she will receive her graduation and teacher's certificates. Miss Soverrhill is a member of the intermediate class. These are two other groupings—the children's and collegiate classes, and the contests for all three took place at Kimball hall on Saturday.

DECIDED TO BUY NEW ROAD GRADER

Common Council Had Brief Session Last Night and Adjourned to This Evening.

All of the city fathers excepting Aldermen Hinchholz and Donahue responded to roll call at the regular meeting of the common council last night but immediately after the recess an adjournment was taken to this evening. Property owners on South Jackson and South Franklin streets filed a petition asking that the R. B. & J. Interurban road be widened to the tracks all the way to the bridge. The bond and oath of The Gazette as official city newspaper were filed and the purchasing committee decided to buy an Austin road grader for the city. Several road-grader agents were on hand at the session. The health officer's report was another feature of the brief session.

DRAINAGE PROJECT FOR TOWN OF LIMA

Steps Toward Reclamation of Another Large Tract of Land Were Taken in Circuit Court Saturday.

By the filing of a petition signed by Edward D. Conn and others steps were taken on Saturday to organize a drainage district in the town of Lima. The filing of the petition in order was entered for a hearing before Judge Graham in circuit court, the time and place fixed being the fifth day of July at three o'clock in the afternoon. At that time a detailed description of the proposed work and the extent of the proposed district will be submitted, together with exhibits showing profiles, maps, and estimate. The starting point of the main outlet ditch is to be at or about the center of the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of Section 19; running thence southwesterly to the northwest corner of the northwest quarter of Section 30; thence following Otter creek to the bridge on the public road. There are a number of branch ditches in the proposed plan.

TO ENTERTAIN THE VETERANS JUNE 8

Wm. H. Sargent Post Will be Guests of Y. M. C. A. on That Day.

On Wednesday evening, June 8, the Y. M. C. A. will give a supper and be hosts at a social evening to William H. Sargent Post, U. S. A., at the association building from 6 to 9 o'clock. The invitation was extended to the veterans recently and it was at first decided to choose Wednesday evening of this week, but because of some conflicting dates, June 8 was chosen. After the supper, a regular campfire will be enjoyed at which songs and war stories will be features. Commander J. P. Carlo has notified the members of the post of the invitation and it is expected that all the members will be present.

Tennis Team Here: Members of the Edgerton Tennis Club were in the city yesterday and played a friendly match with members of the Y. M. C. A. club, winning most of the games they played. The party, part of which came overland in autos, comprised: C. L. Cullen and daughters, Lucille and Kathleen, Henry Johnson, Will Bardeen, William McIntosh and son, Prof. E. L. Rothe, Walter Mabbett, Clarence Jackson, Oscar Johnson, and L. C. Whitford and son Lowell.

SOUTH AFRICA TODAY UNITED

His career is one of the most remarkable examples in recent history. Ten years ago he was an ordinary member of the Transvaal Volksraad. A few months later his courage and energy brought him to the supreme command of the Transvaal forces. For over two years he sustained against the British a struggle whose hopelessness he realized from the beginning. When the inevitable end came near it was his influence with his people that turned the scale in favor of a formal surrender which preserved the political cohesion and moral self-respect of the Boers and incidentally insured his own supremacy as their political leader.

Too Ambitious.
According to a Chicago physician, who bases his discovery on local investigations, six drinks of whiskey have the same effect on a man's system as a hard day's work. Unhappily, too many of those industrious Chicago imbibers try to crowd a week's work into a single day.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Purely an Observation.

WEARING APPAREL

There are so many excellent garments in the wearing apparel section, so many good things that we are making

Great Price Concessions

on, that if you have a possible want it is really worth while to drop in when down town and learn about them

Weather conditions have naturally interfered with the sale of certain classes of garments, leaving us with larger stocks than we care to carry at this season. "We Keep the Quality Up" and never lose sight of quality when we are buying garments. Quality, Quality, Quality. The materials in the garments we buy must come up to a certain standard of Quality or we would not give them house room. It is not often that you can go into a stock of ready-to-wear garments and find them of such uniformly good quality. No matter how low the price, a garment must have merit in order to get a showing here. Even now with the cutting and slashing of prices going on all about us, we are having a very satisfactory business.

The Reason Is

Women are constantly making comparisons and find out that prices in many instances are shoved down on account of the undesirability of the garments offered. Merchants' mistakes in buying—poor judgment—inferior qualities and those garments which appear in print to be wonderful bargains do not satisfy the woman who knows, and who knows that she knows.

The Big Store invites the most critical comparisons and is willing to stand or fall on the judgments of the great buying public.

The spirit of enterprise pervades this store always. We do not intend to see a sleepy day, an idle hour or a wasted minute in the seasons opening wide before us.

And because CASH BUYING and CASH SELLING always have been and always will be the essentials of true economy, we have conducted this store upon a CASH basis in order to save money where the merchant buying on credit cannot save. And in turn we offer actual savings that cannot be obtained, under ordinary conditions, on goods of equal quality bought at a CREDIT store.

We buy for cash from The Mill, The Factory, and Wholesaler, and because we buy for cash the choicest merchandise is offered us at the closest figures; we buy more cheaply because we buy for two big stores at the same time—our Beloit and Janesville stores; we take all discounts on all our bills; we eliminate expensive bookkeeping; we do not have to earn interest on money tied up in "charge accounts," we lose no money on bad accounts.

When you buy, do not merely "pay cash" but buy at THE CASH STORE, managed on CASH BASIS, where cash buying means economical buying. Our merchandise bears one price, and nothing can ever induce us to price our goods a shade of variation from their real value. Every article sold you may regard as warranted and you should always feel secure as to quality and price. Our business of 30 years' standing has been built upon goodness-in-the-goods and fairness in merchandising.

Noisy Nuisances.
 In fitting doors and windows represent a happy hunting ground for the disturbing winds. In fact, so annoying does the constant rattling of these openings become that many determined individuals who resolve to admit the fresh air choose the lesser of two evils and close the openings in preference to sleepless nights. This can be remedied if a small wedge of wood be driven in at the side of an open window. A door can be prevented from rattling if a pad or strip of thick felt be nailed on the edge of the door.
 The annoyance of cracking drawers can be eliminated by rubbing common soap upon the top, sides and bottom of each.
 Cracking hinges on anything should be well oiled, while the grating, irritating noise of a sewing machine can be overcome in a similar manner.
 The little noises wear away the patience that is required for other things. It is foolish to dissipate energy through the channels of irritated nerves when a little time will obviate the nuisances.

Beautiful Hair

Makes the Plainest of Faces Attractive.

Any woman can have beautiful and luxuriant hair by using Parolan Sage, the most efficient hair tonic and dandruff cure.

Parolan Sage is the favorite hair tonic of refined people, and since its introduction it has met with wonderful success.

If you want beautiful, lustrous hair, that will be the envy of your friends, go to the drug store of The People's Drug Co. and get a bottle of Parolan Sage today and use it for a week.

If at the end of a week you are not satisfied that Parolan Sage is the most delightful and refreshing hair tonic you ever used, take it back and get your money.

Mrs. Francis Kogel, 41 W. Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn., on Nov. 16, 1909, wrote: "I have used several hair tonics, but there is none that can compare with Parolan Sage. It cured my falling hair and dandruff, and it does not only cure these troubles, but it is the best hair grower in the world."

Parolan Sage is guaranteed to cure dandruff, to stop falling hair and itching scalp.

Parolan Sage costs only 50 cents a large bottle at The People's Drug Co., or by express, charges prepaid, from Groux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"O H NO, Elmor never baked a cake or did anything like that, in her life. Yes, we do all the housework together, but she does the beds and dishes and dusting and picking up, and I get the mending, and do the cooking, and all the less simple work. It is so much easier that way."

If the easy way were always the best in life, and the line of least resistance the line of success, how much simplified everything would be. But "easy" and "best" are seldom synonymous.

Elmor is sixteen. Some day not so many decades away she will probably have a home of her own, the running of which will very likely require a knowledge of something besides "dusting, picking up and doing beds and dishes."

And yet how many mothers could give a similar account of the division of household labor between themselves and their young daughters. The simpler things that the little daughter can do without any oversight, she is apt to do over and over again, instead of having the daily quota of work made a continually changing and advancing lesson in the art of home making.

Small wonder she doesn't get interested in her household tasks, and shows an inclination to shirk them.

* If you think your little girl will never make a good housekeeper because she doesn't like to dust and wash dishes every day try letting her get a whole meal all herself, or bake a cake and frost it.

And don't take all the interest out of the venture by hanging over her and taking the work out of her hands every few moments with a capable "Here, let me do it. You are so awkward."

Let her have a little responsibility. Nothing pleases a child like the joy of a little responsibility, a taste of the fun of "doing it all myself."

And nothing develops a child more.

"Responsibilities," Elbert Hubbard says, "gravitate to those who can shoulder them."

Conversely, "Shoulders broaden for those to whom responsibilities are given."

One mother of several daughters who wrote me recently in regard to her training of them, believes with me most thoroughly that a daughter's share in the household work should be made more than a dull routine.

"Mama (aged fifteen)," she writes, "is delighted when I place the responsibility of preparing and serving a meal upon her. She has learned this summer to cook vegetables, cereals and desserts very nicely. She watches the clock closely when a joint is being cooked, and will weigh it first to calculate the necessary time it will take, while I stand by and try to be very patient, although it would often be far easier and quicker to do it myself, instead of instructing her."

It seems to me the keynote of the trouble with half the young girls who do not seem to "take to housework" is in that last sentence.

They had mothers who found it far easier to do it themselves than to instruct their daughters, and who followed this line of least resistance.

I trust you won't find that kind of a mother.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

By Rose Terrell.

Have you absolutely decided which hat you will buy. Never was there such a variety to select from. The small turbans and the large broad brims—the tall rather slender crowns and the squat undulating ones, made to suit severely over a mound of hair.

First decide on the most becoming style in which to wear your hair this summer before you begin to try on—and then go the rounds.

Even the simplest effects look rather stunning this year as the big rickish board brim is the fashion most desired. No hat is so universally becoming as this particular style. The flowers are a feast for the eye this year, and there seems to be no limit to the quantity a woman may pile on her hat.

If you are going to try to trim your own hat use the long garden hands of small roses. These are sewn on a band of broad flat wire such as milliners use, two and two (the length you desire) is reached or the length your flowers will go. These are used to loop up the side of the hat or to make a garland around the crown. They may also be twisted into a beak shape and large bows of ribbon run through them for trimming.

The tiny pink roses are the best to use and make the prettiest trimming. The ribbon for bows should be of soft satin and be about four inches wide. It takes nearly five yards to make one of the large bows which are all the trimming used on many of the prettiest hats.

With the exceedingly short dresses being worn now the very prettiest hose and shoes should be worn. A dainty girl in a dainty short tutu gown looks anything but charming. If her shoes are shabby. One girl who wears white a great deal, wears white shoes and white hose for afternoon and evening. For morning wear with her linen frocks she wears black suede

pumps with colored hose to match

the shoes. These hose have a row of large black dots embroidered up the side where the buttons would be on high shoes. The effect is rather odd and dainty and gives a charming number of changes in a rather limited wardrobe.

When sponging black or brown

skirt or coat, it gives a freshness and newness that water will not impart.

The use of the whisk broom is one that every girl should cultivate as a habit. Men are great brushers, and a man will look neat and fresh with very few clothes because of this trait.

Why, then, should the whisk broom habit be a masculine trait.

The hot days are hard on stiff collars. If you are fond of wearing them, get the plain, fine linen ones and then they will not cost a fancy price to keep clean. Better a plain clean collar than to feel compelled to wear one with a shaded edge.

Plain shirt waists are wise for the girl who must resist temptation and yet

must send her waists to the laundry.

Soft cotton under wear and cost little to keep clean. Indeed the worn underwear is better than the frills for everyday. Costs less and wears longer and is easier to keep clean.

WHEN TO STOP.

By MARY HUSSELL.

The orator who makes his mark usually has something to say and says it to the point.

He does not wander all around "Robin Hood's barn" to reach a certain point. He says his way plainly and with a marvelous grasp of the subject and the words hurst himself, as it were, straight towards the goal.

He does not repeat the same statement over and over in many guises. He does not repeat the point of the story to drive it home.

He thinks—or has the courtesy to pretend to think—that his audience is sane and thoughtful enough to grasp the point without repetition.

The speaker who has little to say and yet desires to fill more space than that to which he is entitled, considering the amount of gray matter he has expended on the subject, is very much like the tall of Huxley's comet—very diffuse and attenuated in the attempt to fill space.

The floor is his and if courtesy compels his audience to listen he has no competition. Once more he shows how much he resembles the comet, for he demonstrates how far a little matter may go—in a vacuum.

In this month of many graduates the orator should lay this to heart. It is not the speaker who talks longest who has the greatest and most enthusiastic applause. It is the speaker who says the most in the fewest words who wins praise and the marks of approval of the audience.

We all feel perfectly competent to criticize a public speaker—even those of us who could not say "I move we adjourn" without a quiver in the voice and a trembling of the knees. Even the children who, trembling, and with painstaking care, so ably and eloquently instruct their elders on "commencement day," have their critics, though even the most hardened cynic in the audience has a tender feeling for the arduous and freshness of youth thus displayed.

It is a great thing to know when to stop, but it is a far greater one to know when to stop. The man or woman who drives a blow home with quick, honest, terse words and then stops makes a stronger point than the one who takes a long time explaining all the details of the innumerable workings of a mind which is rather small after all.

Even in ordinary conversation this practice of repetition is sometimes met. It is a pitiful habit.

I know a mother who will not tolerate this trait in her small son. Take all children, he says clever things sometimes, and when "he gets his laugh he tries to work it for a second smile. Mother simply holds up one finger as a reminder that this is the second time. If he forgets and in her hearing tries it again she smilingly asks: "Let me see, how many times is it you have told that story?"

She is preparing him to be a pleasant conversationalist even if he never mounts the orator's platform. He will never forget her quizzical smile and lifted finger, and the day will come when he will be glad of the training.

If more mothers would regard this as a serious defect there would be fewer horses among the story tellers of the next generation.

A good story is good on the same audience just once. Remember it really may not be so good as you think.

An orator may have several points he wants to make. Let him make them and quit.

Learn when to stop.

DAILY DIET HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN

Food Specialist.

BLOOD POISONING.

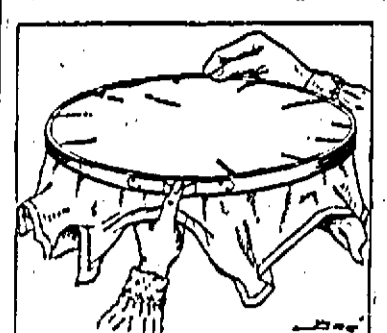

The prick of a pin may cause death, owing to the impure condition of the blood. Impurities introduced into the blood in food or developed in the system by physiological and mental processes, are eliminated through lungs, intestines, kidneys and skin. If the action of any of these organs, or of the liver, is defective, especially while vitality is lowered through physical or mental causes, the defensive powers of the system are lowered. Poisons are constantly being developed in the system from the food waste and from negative mental conditions, especially fear or worry, and if when these conditions exist strongly, poisoning occurs, the system may be unable to overcome the infection. The defensive action against invading forces in the blood is maintained by an army of "police cells" or phagocytes. Complex diet favors the development of poisons, the elimination of which consumes the activities of the phagocytes; simple diet favors phagocytosis, and hence the remarkably quick recovery of wounded Japanese soldiers. An exclusive diet of grapes, apples or pineapples for several days or weeks, changing to rice if necessary, with proper surgical treatment and attention to the eliminative organs is advisable in accidents that threaten blood poisoning.

EMBROIDERY HOOP.

Outer Ring Released by Pressure on Spring at Side.

One of the minor inventions that help make the little things easier for women is the embroidery hoop shown in the illustration. The merit of this hoop is that the two rings are quickly and easily separated, and that without exerting any pressure on the fabric between them. The inner ring is solid, as is usual, but the outer one has a segment cut and is joined by a strip of metal bowed outwardly so as to form a spring. By pressure of the thumb on this spring the outer ring is widened and removed without any strain on the cloth between the two.

Often this cloth is of such fine texture that the rubbing of it between the hoops causes tears or at least spoils the weave. A woman who has put weeks or even months on a fine piece of embroidery will appreciate the advantage of having a pair of hoops that eliminate the danger of having her work damaged at the instant.

Baked Corn.

Score corn, cut it from the cob and scrape out the juice. Beat two eggs, season with salt and pepper and add one pint of milk and enough butter to season. Add corn until the mixture is almost thick. Pour it into a buttered pan and bake in a pan of water in the oven. Keep it covered while baking, for both corn and milk scorch quickly. Remove the lid and brown it just before serving. The corn can be baked in individual dishes.

Rare Old Wine.

Some wine has been discovered in the cellars of the city hall, of Bremen, which has been left there for two and a half centuries.

A Good Job.

Little Edwin, in answer to his question, had been told that God made him. At his bath the next morning his mother saw Edwin examining his skin closely and looking at his arms and legs, and trying to get a glimpse at his back in the glass. Finally he said: "Say, mamma, God made a good job not to have any seams, didn't he?"

Opium Supply.

In the course of a year 639,564 pounds of opium finds its way into London.

A National Waste.

The United States grows annually 8,000,000 tons of flax-straw, which should produce 2,000,000 tons of finished flax fiber, which, if manufactured into linens, would add millions of dollars every year to the commercial value of the United States. This fiber is burned. We have not one dollar invested in linen manufacturing from American flax, and import upward of $18,000,000 of linen fabrics per annum.

LOUISVILLE, KY. SAN FRANCISCO, CAL. NEW YORK, N. Y.

$3,000,000 Advertising Contract Made With Four Afternoon Newspapers

John Wanamaker, the Merchant Prince, Prefers the Newspapers That Are Published at a Time When People Have the Opportunity to Read.

John Wanamaker is the most widely known and one of the most successful merchants in the world.

He has reduced merchandising to exact science and his methods are regarded as standard in the retail world.

He is also one of the largest, if not the largest, purchasers of advertising space. For years he has made the subject of publicity a study and he is probably able to get as much value out of a dollar spent in advertising as anyone in the advertising field.

In New York at the present time, Mr. Wanamaker is running a page advertisement each day in four newspapers of that city. He has entered into a contract to run, not for one year, but for five years! In the preparation of his advertising copy he employs a staff of editors, artists, special writers, etc., large enough to equip a good-sized daily newspaper.

The New York Herald, The New York Sun and The New York Tribune being perhaps the best known of the daily papers of that city, all of them morning papers, and established when New York was little more than a village, will occur to everyone as being the mediums selected by Mr. Wanamaker.

On the contrary, he uses The Telegram, The Mail, The Post and The Brooklyn Standard Union, each and every one of them evening newspapers.

In an interview with the manager of Mr. Wanamaker's advertising, he stated that he chose the evening papers because "the public has much more time to read the advertisements at night than in the morning, and, further, the evening papers tend to go into the family circle more."

That a single merchant should make a five years' contract with each of four papers to insert a page advertisement each week of the year for a period of five years, has created a real sensation in the advertising world, and the fact that not a single morning newspaper is included in that list has made publishers of morning papers, not only in that city, but in other cities, sit up and take notice.

Mr. Wanamaker's preference for evening newspapers as an advertising medium is based on nearly a half century of experience in advertising. His example is worthy of the attention of every merchant in the country who spends money for advertising space.—Springfield (Ill.) Evening News.

From the above will be noted that even though Wanamaker is one of the largest buyers of advertising space, yet he prefers to reach the people every day rather than to use two-page spreads (in some of the smaller merchants do) not so often.

A point that Jamesville's progressive merchants might well consider is that in New York it requires four papers to cover their field as thoroughly as one paper covers this field, and that while the field is much greater, the rates for advertising are equally large.

FESTIVAL OF MUSIC
WAS MUCH ENJOYED

Splendid Program Given at May Festival Held in Evansville
Last Week.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Evansville, May 30.—The May Festival of Music, given here last week, was enjoyed by many music-lovers of this city as well as a number who came from surrounding towns. The entire city is under lasting obligations to Miss Anna L. Boyce for making possible this grand musical treat, for it is generally conceded that nothing so fine in a musical line has ever been given here before, and all in attendance freely expressed their praise and appreciation. The opening entertainment was the piano recital by the pupils of Miss Boyce and the work of the students showed thorough and painstaking training, and was a credit to both pupils and director. The song recital Thursday evening was a delightful entertainment.
The program was made up entirely of outside talent. Mrs. Inez Thompson Peterson, the contralto, was well remembered from a former appearance here, and her songs were greeted with rounds of applause, as was also Mrs. Millman, the soprano soloist. Mrs. Walker, the tenor, pleased everyone, and Miss Brandenburg, the pianist, received an equal amount of praise. In fact, every number on the program was warmly applauded and each singer was called back repeatedly.
The grand concert given Friday evening by the Choral Union, assisted by the soloists, and under the leadership of Mrs. Edna Katey Boyce, charmed every one in the audience.
Part I, "The Garden of Eden," was given entirely by the soloists and was a rare treat. Part II, "The Swan and the Skylark," was rendered in an excellent manner and all gave evidence of their appreciation not only by their applause, but by their good words at the close of the entertainment.

OPENING DAY MATCH
ENJOYED ON MONDAY

East Side Golfers Defeated West Side
Players—Bridge Game, Club
Supper and Dance Completed Day's Program.

That the St. Andrew's golf club is to prove a most popular place during the coming summer months was evidenced Monday when the formal opening of the golf season was inaugurated. For the active players the contest between the East and West side teams proved most interesting,
the East Siders winning by a score of 16 to 9. In the handicap tournament, J. G. Rostford carried off the honors for first place with Arthur Harris the runner up prize winner.
In the ladies putting contest, Mrs. E.
H. Peterson was victor.

Inside the club house the ladies enjoyed an afternoon at bridge. Miss Emma Richardson was the winner with Mrs. St. John as the holder of the lowest score card. At five an innovation in the afternoon games was inaugurated in the shape of a cup of tea with dainty wafers. The next regular bridge afternoon is on Thursday of this week and the games will be held each Thursday this year instead of Friday as formerly.

At six thirty the first club supper was served, eighty-eight being supper. This is the largest supper for an opening night in the history of the club and shows the growing popularity of these events. The supper was followed by the first of the summer series of club dances. Roy Carlor's orchestra furnishing the musical inspiration. Thursday will be club day in the future, with the club supper at six thirty and the dance in the evening.

The games committee of the club are planning for many events during the summer months which may include a contest with the Ridgewood Country Club of Chicago at the latter's grounds and also several home tournaments with Rockford, Madison and Beloit. The scores for yesterday's East and West Side match is as follows with the West Side players' names first.

John Davis Dead.
C. M. Davis received word Friday of the death of his brother, John Davis, who passed away at his home in Huron, South Dakota, at eight o'clock that morning. His death was due to paralysis, from which he had been a sufferer for more than a year.
The deceased was born and passed the earlier years of his life in this vicinity and had many friends here who will be pained to learn of his untimely death, for he was only about fifty-four years of age. He leaves a wife and two daughters, also three brothers, Charles M. of this city, Truman of Janesville, and Abraham of Minnesota. C. M. Davis left Saturday morning to attend the funeral.

Miss Blanche Crow came home from Chicago, Saturday evening, for a month's vacation. She was accompanied by her cousin, Miss May Long, who came for a visit to local relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bonney and daughter, Evanah, of Beloit, have been spending a few days with Mrs.
Bonney's mother, Mrs. L. Palmer.

Burr Reilly, who works in the office of the Illinois Steel company of Milwaukee, came home last evening to spend Sunday.

Mrs. Frank Davis of Janesville has been spending several days with her father, John Devoroux, and her sister, Mrs. John Wall.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fowler were over Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schneider in Beloit.

Elmer Garrett of Chicago is visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. C.
Myatt.

J. F. Washell was a Janesville visitor Friday.

George Hayward of Berlin, Wis., an honored member of the U. A. R., came back to his old home to spend December day.

Mrs. T. W. Parkinson and two children of Waukesha are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Winsor.

W. W. Howland is entertaining his sister, Miss Charlotte Howland, of Milwaukee.

Miss Maude Fessenden came home from West Allis, Friday, and remained until Monday evening.

Mrs. Henry Amos and little daughter of Kendall, Wis., have been spending a week with relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Shaw arrived Saturday morning from Woodstock, Ill., to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, Charles Horne, which was held in Janesville, Saturday. Others from here who attended were Edgar Horne and family, Daniel Shaw, Mr. and Mrs.
Kath Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Warren
Hodg, Miss Gertrude Hodg, and Mrs.
N. D. Shaw.

Mrs. Clifton went to Albany, Saturday, for an extended visit to her daughter, Mrs. Harry Broughton.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Smith, Mrs. A.
Eager, and Mrs. Gertrude Eager were guests of Janesville relatives over Sunday. Leonard Eager of Racine College also spent Sunday in the Hawer City and returned with his mother in the auto to remain over Decorations Day.

Mrs. Herbert Wright of Janesville was an Evansville caller on Saturday.
Paul Lemuel of Hollet spent Sunday here with his parents and friends.

The Misses Josie Crow and Grace Fessenden, who have been home for a brief visit, returned to DeForest today.

Hearst Was Not Robbed.
London, May 31.—The following statement appears in the London papers from William H. Hearst:
"I have not been in Milan. I have not been in any part of Italy. I have not been out of England and France since my arrival in Europe. I have not been robbed of $25,000. I have not been robbed of 25 cents, nor of any money nor of any pocketbook of any kind."

Roosevelt Is Guest With Peary.
London, Eng., May 31.—The Royal Geographical society entertained Theodore Roosevelt and several other prominent persons at luncheon.
Among those invited to meet the former president were Lord Kitchener, Commander Robert H. Peary, Lord
Curzon and Lord Strathearn, high commanders of Canada.

ALL THREE GIVE BAIL BOND

Senator Broderick Declares His Accuser Is Unsubstantiated Charge—His Law Disposes of His Bank and Is In State of Collapse.

Springfield, May 31.—Following their release on bail, Senators John Broderick of Chicago and Stanton C.
Pemberton of Oakland and Representative Joseph H. Clark of Vandalia, all made a general denial of the charges set out in the indictments voted against them Saturday by the Sangamon county grand jury.

The three legislators appeared before Judge Creighton, entered pleas of not guilty to the charges and were admitted to bail immediately.

Making the above declarations, the three members of the Illinois state legislature named by State Senator H.
D. Holstlaw of Bureau, in his bribery confession of last Saturday before the Sangamon county grand jury, appeared in succession before Judge James A.
Creighton and entered bond for their answer to the indictments returned against them.

Clark First to Appear.
Representative Clark was the first to appear. Accompanied by his bond-men and Attorney Thomas Dawson of Chicago, he entered the office of State's Attorney Edmund Burke and sat down to await the appearance of Judge Creighton.

About an hour later a telephone message from the office of Graham & Graham, attorneys for Senator Pemberton, announced the arrival of the latter, and by common consent both waited for the incoming Chicago & Alton train, which bore Senator Broderick, accompanied by a deputy sheriff.

Burke Interviews Holstlaw.
Not expecting Senator Broderick to appear in Springfield, State's Attorney Burke had gone to Iuka, there to see Senator Holstlaw and endeavor to extract from him further information concerning the deal by which he claims he was paid $25,000 by Senator Broderick for voting for United States Senator William Lorimer, $700 from a "jack-pot" because it was coming to him, and was to receive $1,500 for voting for certain furniture bills.

When Representative Clark appeared he was plainly ill at ease and nervously fidgeted in his chair while Attorney Dawson stood guard over him. He would not have been permitted to talk even if he had been willing to do so, and all he would say was:
"I am innocent."

His bondsmen, Richard Egan, a contractor, and Benjamin J. Kirkin, a liveryman, both of Springfield, also appeared as bondsmen for Senator Broderick.

Broderick Gives the "Lie."
While aboard the train, approaching Springfield, Senator Broderick discussed his case rather freely, he said:
"Holstlaw is an unmitigated liar. There never was any meeting in the St. Nicholas hotel; there never was any meeting at which money was discussed; there never was a meeting at which the subject of voting for Senator Lorimer was discussed."

"I did not ask Holstlaw to vote for Lorimer and the only times I ever talked with him would be when I chatted with him just the same as I would with any of the other senators and representatives. In fact, I never chatted with Holstlaw as much as with others."

Ready to Face Jury.
Asked if he would be willing to appear before the Sangamon county
grand jury, he replied:
"I shall be very glad to do so."

Assistant State's Attorney Adolph Bernard, who attended to the formality of overseeing the bail bond, said that he did not believe Senator Broderick will be called before the grand jury at present, although that body reconvenes this afternoon.

Holstlaw Sells His Bank.
Iuka, Ill., May 31.—State Senator
Daniel Wesley Holstlaw, who on Saturday last confessed to being bribed to vote for Senator Lorimer, sold out his bank here and is going to quit the country. In other words, two automobiles loaded with the officers and directors of the First National bank of Salem, drove over here, purchased the Holstlaw bank and will take possession at once.

The Holstlaw State bank was owned entirely by Senator Holstlaw. It was capitalized at $250,000 and is said to have deposits amounting to $100,000.
Holstlaw was the president, his wife
Clara the vice-president, and his son,
H. D. Holstlaw, the cashier.

Holstlaw is in utter collapse. His physician and nurse are at his bed side.

Mayer of San Francisco Hurt.
Indianapolis, Ind., May 31.—Mayor
P. H. McCarthy of San Francisco suffered a broken ankle in an automobile accident here. Mayor McCarthy was riding in the car of J. O. Carson, national secretary of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, when the machine ran into a street car.

Kaiser's Wrist Slowly Healing.
Potsdam, Germany, May 31.—Emperor William remains at the palace where the healing progress of the ab-rased on his right wrist, due to an insect bite, is being watched closely by the physicians.

ron, the aged father-in-law of President Taft, who has been ill for several days, is much improved.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, May 31, 1870.—Jottings.—The Concordia turned out in force this afternoon to attend the funeral of Nic. Shuman, the man who died from the effects of injuries received in Morse, Hanson &
Co.'s establishment some days since.
Strawberries are plenty in this market at 15 cents per quart today.

The Board of Trustees of the village of Jefferson, at a recent meeting, passed a vote of thanks to the fire companies of Watertown and Janesville for services rendered at the late fire in Jefferson.

Al. Millmore and his associates in the Third Ward are doing a good thing in having the streets under their jurisdiction, cleared up, removing the loose stones and boulders, and abating the nuisances generally.

Barrett's counsel gave notice today to the Circuit Court, of a motion for a new trial.

Strawberries begin to ripen in the gardens in this city. The crop promises to be a wonderfully small one,
the drought having injured it materially.

Stoller, the groceryman, has sold his handsome team of grays. He got a good, handsome price for them.

GOULD BOY IS "BROKE"

"HOOPS IT" FIFTY MILES

Held to $15,000,000 Runs Away From School—Sleeps in Cheap Lodging House.

New Britain, Conn., May 31.—While Edwin Gould, son of Jay Gould and worth a sixth of $8,000,000, ran wild over Connecticut in a hunt for his son, Edwin, Jr., aged sixteen, the youth was in jail at New Britain as a tramp. He had been there for several hours, after three days and nights of hunger "on the road."

New Britain, Conn., May 31.—Edwin Gould, Jr., sixteen years of age, and eldest son of Edwin Gould of New York and a grandson of Jay Gould, one of the heirs to a fortune of $15,000,000, was picked up on Main street here by Policeman Quirk. The boy was hungry, disheveled and footsore.

He ran away from Pomfret school at Pomfret Center, Conn., last Friday with less than a dollar in his pocket, spent the money for food and lodging and when found here was penniless. He says that on Saturday night at Hartford he slept in a 15-cent lodging for hours, sharing a room with vermin, and suffered tortures from vermin.

Young Gould had been at the school for three months. He was oppressed by the loneliness of Pomfret Center and disappeared because his parents had written him that they would be unable to visit him and spend Sunday and Memorial day in his company. As he had never before taken a step on his own responsibility in his life, and knew absolutely nothing about taking care of himself, he had a pretty hard time in his 50-mile tramp.

ROOSEVELT TALKS WITH ROOT.

Meets Former Secretary at Ambassador Reid's House in London.

London, May 31.—Former President Roosevelt had an opportunity to hear something of affairs in the United States. By appointment he met Senator William Root, who is passing through London on his way to The Hague.

Roosevelt and his former cabinet officer had a long talk in Ambassador Reid's residence, Dorchester House. Asked afterward what interesting subject had kept them together for so long, Colonel Roosevelt laughingly replied:

"This is one of the cases in which I must observe my usual reticence." Upon his arrival in Europe, Roosevelt wrote to Senator Root, asking the senator to meet him. Acceptance of this invitation was by wireless from the steamship Lapland, on which Root was traveling.

CORNELL CREWS BEAT HARVARD.

Ithaca Win Varsity and Freshman Boat Races at Cambridge.

Cambridge, Mass., May 31.—Cornell scored a double victory over Harvard on the Charles river. In the varsity eight-oar race the Ithacans finished a length ahead of the Crimson crew, while in the freshman race the Cornell shell crossed the line fully six lengths ahead of the Harvard eight.

Ithaca, N. Y., May 31.—Cornell completed her "mortal day" rowing triumph by sending her junior varsity crew a mile in the Dutch line of the Cayuga to regatta three lengths ahead of the Harvard men from Pennsylvania.

Back to the Dead Past.

A Gaelic cemetery containing archaeological remains dating between two and three thousand years, has been discovered at Pooky, near Rhelma. The objects include many different vases, bowls, necklaces and bracelets, some richly jeweled.

WANTS HER LETTER PUBLISHED

For Benefit of Women who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My pains all left me. I grew stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman."

"I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." Mrs. J. M. Jones, 215 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of uncollected and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs. Women who suffer from these distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letter most strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

HALF A CHANCE

By Frederic S. Isham,

Author of "The Strollers," "Under the Rose," "The Lady of the Mount," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY THE ROBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

They drew in their horses. The black one became restive, eyed with obvious disapproval a gayly bedecked body of men swinging smartly along toward them.

And at the sight and sound the girl's horse, unaccustomed to the pomp and pride of martial display, began to plunge and rear. She spoke sharply, tried to control it, but found she could not. Lord Ronald saw her predicament, but was powerless to lend assistance, being at the moment engaged in a vigorous effort to prevent his own horse from bolting.

The bugles came directly opposite. The black horse reared viciously. For the moment it seemed that Jocelyn would either be thrown or that the frightened animal would fall over on her, when a man sprang forward and a hand reached up. He stood almost beneath the horse. As it came down a hoof struck his shoulder a glancing blow, grazed his arm, tearing the cloth. But before the animal could continue his rebellious tactics a hand like iron had reached for, grasped the bridle. Those who watched could realize great strength in the restraining fingers, the unusual power of Steele's muscles. The black horse, trembling, soon stood still, the bugles passed on, and Steele looked up at the girl.

"Few riders could have kept their seats so well," he answered, with ill concealed admiration.

"I have always been accustomed to horses. In Australia we ride a great deal."

"For the instant," his face slightly paler, "I thought something would happen."

"It might have," she returned, a light in her eyes, "but for a timely hand. My horse apparently does not appreciate Scotch airs."

"Ugly brute!" Lord Ronald, a dissatisfied expression on his handsome countenance, approached. "A little of the whip!" The words were arrested. The nobleman stared at John Steele or rather at the bare arm which the torn sleeve revealed well above the elbow.

The white, uplifted arm suddenly dropped. Steele drew the cloth quickly about it, but not before his eyes had met those of Lord Ronald and caught the amazement, incredulity, sudden terror—was it terror?—in their depths. The nobleman's face looked drawn and gray. With one hand he seemed almost clinging to his saddle, John Steele turned his back. He was heading over the girth of his saddle, and his features could not be seen, but the hand, so firm and assured a moment before, seemed a little uncertain as it made pretense to ram a fastener or buckle.

"Why, man, you look ill!" Captain Forsythe, turning to Lord Ronald, exclaimed suddenly.

"It's nothing much." With vacant expression the nobleman regarded the speaker, then lifted his hand and pressed it on his instant to his breast. "Fear," he murmured mechanically, "heavily had heart, you know, and sometimes a little thing—slight shock—Miss Wray's danger."

"Take some of this." The captain, with solicitude, pressed a flask on him. The nobleman drank deeply. "There, that'll pick you up."

"Are you ready, Mr. Steele?" Jocelyn Wray waited a moment as the others started, looked down at that gentleman. Her voice was gracious. Its soft accents seemed to say: "You may ride with me, it is your reward."

For one restored so quickly to favor, with a felicitous prospect of gay words and bright glances, John Steele seemed singularly dull and apathetic. It was impossible she should not notice his want of attention. She bit her lips once. Then she laughed.

"Do you know, Mr. Steele, if I were vain I should feel hurt. You haven't heard what I have been saying."

"Haven't I?" Again she looked at him merrily.

"Of course I can't afford to be harsh with my rescuer. Perhaps—in the same sense—you really did save my life. Have you ever really saved any one—any one else, shall I say—you, who are so strong?"

A spasm of pain passed over his face. His look, however, was not for her, and the girl's eyes, too, had now become suddenly set afar. Was she thinking of another scene, some one her own words confused to mind? Her mood seemed to gain in seriousness. She also became very quiet, and so, almost in silence, they went on to the entrance, down the street to her home.

"Au revoir, and thank you."

"Goodbye—at least for the present," he added. "I am leaving London."

seems serious, I suppose. "We—we are moving into the country in a few weeks. Shall I—shall we see you before then?"

"To my regret, I am afraid not."

"And after?"—in a voice matter of fact—"I think must have put you down for July. A house party. I don't recall the exact dates. You will come?"

"Certainly," a little stiffly, "circumstances permitting." She gave him her hand. "Au revoir, or goodbye if you prefer it." He held the little gloved fingers, let them drop.

"Good luck in your business," she found herself saying, half gayly, half ironically.

He answered hoarsely something—what?—rode off. With color flaming high, the girl looked after him until Lord Ronald's horse, clattering near, caused her to turn quickly.

CHAPTER VIII.

A CONFERENCE AND A DISCOVERY.

THE bookworm's row, hardly a street, more a short cut passage between two important thoroughfares, had through the course of many years exercised a subtle fascination for pedants, pedagogues or literate literatures. Higher, above the little shops, small rooms, reached by rickety stairways, offered quiet corners for divers and sundry gentlemen whose occupations called for discreet and retired nooks.

In one of these places, described on the door as "a private, confidential inquiry office," sat on the morning following John Steele's ride in the park a little man with ferret-like eyes at a dusty desk near a dusty window. He did not seem to be very busy—was engaged at the moment in drawing meaningless cabalistic signs on a piece of paper when a step in the hallway and a low tapping at the door caused him to throw down his pen and straighten expectantly. A client perhaps—a woman—no, a man! With momentary surprise he gazed on the delicately chiseled features of his caller, a gentleman faultlessly dressed and wearing a spring flower in his coat.

"Mr. Gillett?" The visitor's glance rolled an expression of restlessness. His face, although masklike, was tinted with a faint flush.

The police agent at once rose. "The same, sir, at your service. I—but I beg your pardon. Unless I am mistaken—haven't we?"

"Yes, a number of years ago on the Lord Nelson," said the caller in a hard, matter of fact tone. "We were fellow passengers on her berth."

"We became fellow occupants of one of her small bents. An aging experienced. But won't you," with that deference for rank and position those of his type are pained to assume, "honour me by being seated, Lord Ronald?"

The visitor looked at the table, the window, anywhere save at the proprietor of the establishment, then said, "I saw by an advertisement in the morning papers that you had severed your connection with the force and had opened this—a private consultation bureau."

"Quite so." The other looked momentarily embarrassed. "A little fiction—account of some case—unreliable witness that got tangled up. They undertook to criticize me after all my faithful service!" He broke off. "Besides, the time comes when a man realizes he can do better for himself by himself. I am now devoting myself to a small but strictly high class, with an accent, 'clonelle'."

Lord Ronald considered. When he spoke his voice was low, but it did not cease the ear. "You know John Steele, of course?"

The ferret eyes snapped. "That I do, your lordship. What of him?"

"Ever think much about the Lord Nelson, Gillett?"

"She isn't a bent one's apt to forget after what happened, your lordship." Was the answer. "And, if I do say it, her passengers were of the kind to leave pleasant recollections," the police agent diplomatically added.

"Her passengers?" The caller's thin lips compressed. "Among them, if memory serves me, were a number of convicts?"

"A job lot of precious fallbirds that I was acting as escort of, your lordship."

"But who never reached Australia?"

"Drowned—every mother's son of them!" observed Mr. Gillett, with a possible trace of complacency.

"True," Lord Ronald gazed absently out of the window. "Recall the day on that memorable voyage you were telling us about them—who they were, and so on?"

"One, if I recall rightly," went on Lord Ronald, "was known as—let me see—the elastic stick described a sharper curve—'the Frisco Pet'—remember?" He bent slightly nearer.

"That I do. Not likely to forget him. Unmanageable; one of the worst. Was transported for life, with death as a penalty for returning." A slight sound came from the nobleman's throat.

Lord Ronald's eyes half closed. "A heavy set, shapely brute, with muscles like steel, but ignorant." He lingered on the word. Then his glance suddenly lifted. "Had something on his arm; recall noticing it while the boat was on?"

Mr. Gillett, with a knowing expression, rose, took a volume from a bookcase and opened it.

"The 'something' you speak of, my lord," he observed proudly, "should be here. I will show it that you may appreciate my system, the method I have of gathering and tabulating data. You will find an encyclopaedia of information in that bookcase. All that Scotland Yard has and perhaps a little besides. To illustrate, here's his case." Gillett's fingers moved lightly over the page. "Testimony of Dandy Joe, downstairs at the time with landlady who kept the house where the crime was committed. Heard Frisco Pet, who had been drinking, come in, go upstairs, as they supposed, to his own room; shortly after landlady's pistol shot. Landlady and Joe found woman, Amy Gerrard, dead in shabby little sitting room. Pet, the worse for liquor, in dazed condition at a table, head in his hands. Testimony of Joe corroborated by landlady. She swore no one had been in house except parties here mentioned, all lodgers."

"Private men—Cousin in had neighborhood, near the Adelphi catmancove. Son of landlady, red headed giant, also one time prizefighter, used to live here. The Pet's last fight in the ring was with him. Later Tom took to the road. Was wanted by the police at the time of the crime for some brutal highway work—'But,' breaking off, "I am wearying your lordship. Here are what I was especially looking for, the markings on the arm of the Frisco Pet. Perhaps, however, your lordship doesn't care to listen further."

"Go on!" The words broke sharply from the visitor's lips; then he gave a metallic laugh. "I am interested in this wonderful system of yours."

Mr. Gillett read slowly. "On the right arm of the Frisco Pet, just below the elbow, appears the figure of a man in sparring attitude done in sailor's tattooing; about the waist a flag, the stars and stripes in their accustomed colors crudely drawn, but not to be mistaken by noting following defects and details—'which,' closing the book, 'I won't read.'"

OLDFIELD BREAKS AUTO MARK. Drives 190 Horsepower Machine Mile in 35.6 Seconds.

Indianapolis, May 31.—Over forty thousand people saw Barney Oldfield break the American mile automobile record over a circular track at the Indianapolis Speedway. Oldfield's new mark for a mile is 35.6 seconds, made with the big 190 horsepower Benz, lowering his old record of 36.22 made last winter at Los Angeles.

The other big feature of the day was the fifty-mile race for the Henry trophy, which was captured by Harrold, who won the Wheeler-Schreiber event Saturday with Marmon Waap.

BURROWS TO SEEK RE-ELECTION.

Michigan Senator Announces His Candidacy for Another Term.

Kalamazoo, Mich., May 31.—United States Senator Julius C. Burrows, through the Burrows club of this city and county, announced his candidacy for re-election and his desire to be re-elected by popular vote at the primaries next fall.

His announcement, commends the "conservative, yet progressive, tendencies of President Taft." It also indorses the Republican platform of 1908.

NEGRO IS SECRETLY LYNCHED.

Body of Missouri Town Marshal's Assistant Found Hanging.

New Madrid, Mo., May 31.—The body of a negro who was secretly taken from jail here was found hanging from a tree near this city. The negro had attacked City Marshal Richards when told by the officer Saturday night to "move off." Richards, with the assistance of others, overpowered the negro and placed him in jail. The coroner's jury failed to secure any evidence in the lynching case.

Big Homeopathic Celebration. New York, May 31.—Homeopathic physicians from all parts of the country have flocked to New York to participate in the big celebration of the semi-centennial of the New York Homeopathic Medical college, which began today with the commencement exercises. It is one of the greatest gatherings of homeopaths the country ever has seen. Tomorrow and Thursday will be given up almost wholly to the alumni, who have come from nearly every state in the Union. AN UP-TO-DATE STOVE
Do you realize there is no longer any reason why you should use a coal range? Oil is cheaper than coal; it is lighter and easier to handle, and gives an intense heat. Provided you have the right stove, oil is more economical, cleaner and less trouble. Have you seen the

New Perfection Oil Cook-stove

The accompanying illustration gives you only a rough idea of its appearance. You really can't appreciate it until you either use it yourself, or talk to someone who has used it. It does everything that a coal range will do—except heat the room. The New Perfection Oil Cook-stove will do anything from heating a kettle of water to cooking a course dinner, but it won't heat a room. It doesn't "smell," it doesn't smoke. It doesn't get out of order. Light it and it is ready. Turn it down and it is out. Only a woman who knows the trouble of carrying coal and cooking in a hot kitchen can appreciate what it means to have a clean, perfect stove that will cook anything, boil, bake or roast, and yet won't heat the kitchen. How is it done? The flame is controlled in turquoise-blue enamel chimneys, and directed against the bottom of pot, pan, kettle or oven, and only there. The flame operates exactly where it is needed—and nowhere else. With this stove your kitchen is cool.
The nickel finish with the bright blue of the chimneys makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.
Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name is on the front—New Perfection.

Pet Mispronunciations.
"Have you ever noticed," asked the teacher in English, "that a great many well-educated people persistently pronounce at least one word incorrectly? I know a college man who for some mysterious reason always says 'timidity' for 'timidity,' and he drags this oddity into almost every sentence he speaks. Mrs. Smith's pet word is 'predijice,' while Mrs. Jones can't help saying 'gulantic.' Just listen to them, and you'll hear the same people repeating over and over such mistakes as 'predilection,' 'circutious,' 'enpolo,' etc. Some one must have called their attention to it, I suppose, but they have grown attached to their way of pronouncing, and don't like to change."

JUST REVERSED THE "GAG"

More Truth in Old Stage Driver's Last Observation Than in His Previous Ones.
As the coach jugged along the wild and mountainous trail the lone traveler asked the old stage driver about a certain outlaw that had terrorized that section some years back.
"O, you mean Bad Bill," drawled the old man reminiscently. "Well, Bill wasn't such a scoundrelous cuss. He held up this coach six times one winter, but outside of that he was all right."
"He must have been strenuous," commented the traveler.
"Yes, and when he got tired of holding up the coach he stole 20 horses and shot up a town just for sport, but outside of that he was all right."
"What? He must have been the limit."
"Pretty wild, pard; pretty wild. Then I recollect that he wrecked a medicine show, burned down a circus tent and tarred and feathered a minister man, but outside of that he was all right, stranger." The coach had now approached a big gray building that stood on a hill.
"What place is that?" asked the traveler.
"Why, that's the state prison. That's where Bad Bill is serving his time."
The traveler smiled sarcastically.
"Wonder you don't spring that gag about 'outside of that he's all right.'"
But the old man was equal to the emergency.
"O, no, pard," he chuckled, "I'll change it around a bit now. Inside of that he's all right. Get up, horses!"—Chicago Daily News.

Sameness.
"There is a certain sameness about natural scenery," said the man who looks bored. "Do you mean to compare a magnificent mountain with the broad expanse of the sea?" "Yes. Whenever you find a spot of exceptional beauty somebody is sure to decorate it with marble tops and biscuit boxes."—Washington Star.

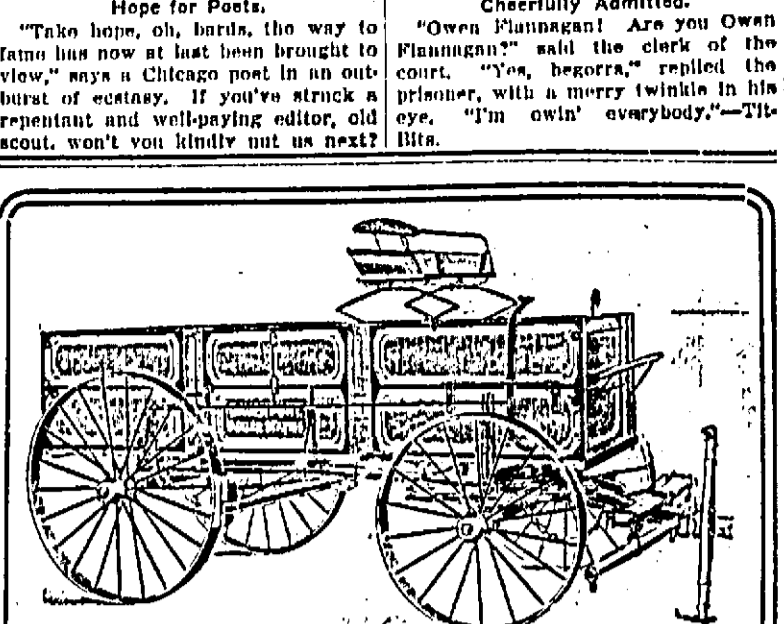

CAUSE OF ECZEMA EXPLAINED.
After years of debate medical authorities are now agreed that Eczema and other skin diseases are not caused by myriads of microscopic animals gnawing the flesh just below the epidermis. The patient is perfectly healthy, it is only the skin that is diseased.
Hence, scientists are now agreed that you must cure the skin through the skin. The medicine must be in liquid form in order to penetrate properly. And we can say with confidence that we have the true remedy for Eczema in our store.
The instant you wash with this soothing liquid you will find the itch relieved. We positively assure you of this. Will you try a bottle (at only 25c), on our recommendation. Ask for D. D. D. Prescription. J. P. Baker, Janesville, Wis.

Hope for Pasts.

"Take hope, oh, bands, the way to fame has now at last been brought to view," says a Chicago poet in an outburst of ecstasy. If you've struck a repentant and well-paying editor, old scout, won't you kindly not us next?

Cheerfully Admitted.
"Owen Flannagan! Are you Owen Flannagan?" said the clerk of the court. "Yes, begorra," replied the prisoner, with a merry twinkle in his eye. "I'm owen everybody."—Tib Bits.

Davenport Roller-Bearing Farm Wagons

The Davenport Wagon with steel gearing, steel wheels, and roller bearings, after the most severe and thorough tests, has easily proven far superior to the old style farm wagon. The man who buys a Davenport has a wagon that is a marked progressive departure from the type of wagon he has been forced to use as long as anyone can remember.
Because of the scarcity and inferior grade of wood the old style wagon is not today, of as good quality as it was years ago. The price, however, necessarily keeps advancing.
Particularly about the farm do we notice advancement and improvement in everything except the wagon. The implements are practically all steel. The steel wheel is used almost entirely on implements, the wooden wheel is rarely seen. The farmer appreciates the roller-bearing, its use is constantly increasing on farm equipment of all kinds.
The wagon has been neglected in this march of progress. The Davenport Roller-Bearing Steel Farm Wagon takes rank with the most improved equipment on the farm. In the Davenport the farmer obtains a wagon with the strength, durability and carrying capacity all increased, while the draft is reduced to such an extent that there is no doubt about it.
This combination of excellence has never before been offered to the user of a wagon. The Davenport Roller-Bearing Wagon has no many distinctive features as to place it beyond competition. Its merits and advantages will be more fully understood and appreciated if you will call in person and see it for yourself and have us explain the many very good points it embodies.
